

Louisiana Slave Conspiracies

presented by

Patty Frontiera, Amani Morrison & Bryan Wagner

Monday, February 26th, 12:30 PM - 2:00 PM
D-Lab Convening Room, 356B Barrows Hall

We are a multidisciplinary research project dedicated to preserving, digitizing, transcribing, translating, and analyzing manuscripts from three Louisiana slave conspiracies. We are building a digital archive that will present these French and Spanish manuscripts alongside original transcription and English translation. The centerpiece of the archive will be the testimonies taken from slaves and their allies in the conspiracy. Previously these testimonies, which run to several hundred pages, have only been available to scholars who have been able to travel to the Clerk of Court's office in Pointe Coupee, Louisiana. An interactive website is being developed to provide access to these materials by scholars and interested public alike. The site will also feature interactive historical maps that will provide location-based access to the collection but will also help explore essential but still unresolved questions about the organization of social relations and the circulation of ideas in these conspiracies.

Learn more and Register at dhfellows-spring18.eventbrite.com

DIGITAL HUMANITIES
AT BERKELEY